Maya Guerrero

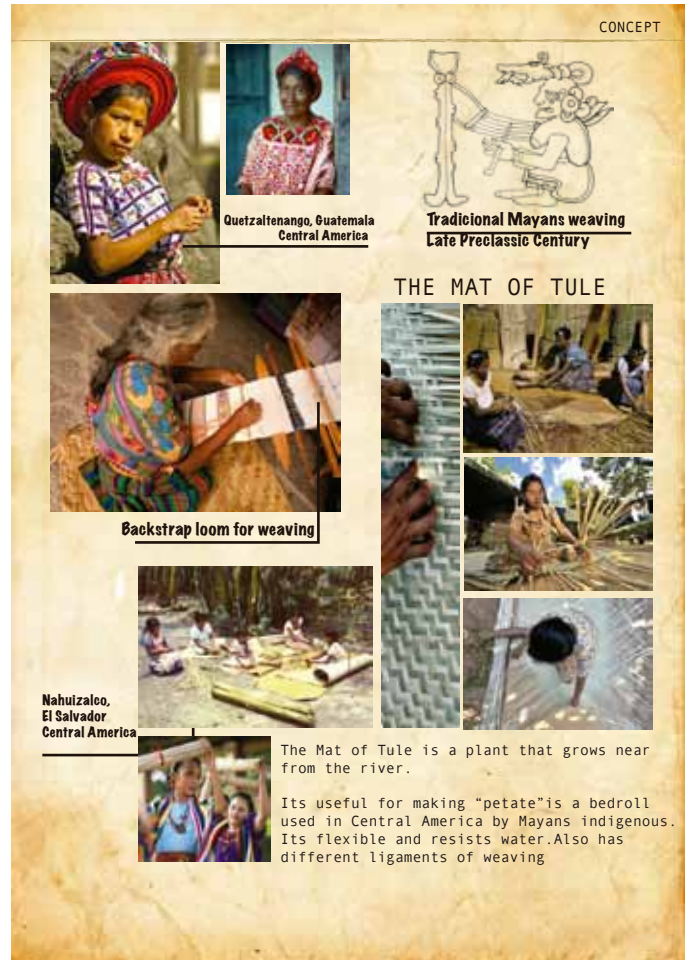

Was born in San Salvador, El Salvador where she began to be a part of the world of art in an early age taking part of the Salvadoran company of Ballet. In 2008 as she was 20 years of age and after studying architecture for two years she decided to move to Barcelona in order to study Fashion Design at Escuela de Moda Felicidad Duce. In 2011 she spends one semester abroad in Italy.

She took part of many catwalks during the last years in a national and international level. She's been awarded with the second prize as best designer at the Fortuny Catwalk, in Granada, in November 2013. In March of 2013 she participated as well at the Hempel Award China Fashion Week, in Beijing, where she was awarded with a Country Award. She also took part of the Catwalks during the Central American Fashion Week in Panama and in San Salvador. Lastly she has been a finalist at the Barcelona Designers Collective in Summer 2014.

She considers herself as a strong indigenous art-lover, which is why her collections have a strong constant reference to the ethnic and ethic roots.
