My Business Plan

Executive Summary

Restaurant will be a very popular service, restaurant that combine color, art and great food and service in a culture art Canadian atmosphere. My plan is to establish a Canadian-Iranian Food Restaurant in Montreal. Restaurant is often used in reference to foods and alcohols drinks, foods that are permissible for people to eat or drink alcohols under Canadian law. I have a decision to establish a modern Canadian-Iranian restaurant with new visions. One of the reasons my restaurant is so successful is because it is the only restaurant in the area of a five-mile radius that serves authentic Iranian-Canadian food. We purchase fresh produce daily and prepare several dishes that represent the cuisine of Iran and Canada. The legal form that we have chosen is corporation. I have researched that there exists some traditional restaurant in Canada that are operating in old manner and traditionally. Restaurant Mission is to introduce delicious and remarkable Canadian-Iranian food and alcohols drinks in a place with combination of modern and traditional views. The Canadian-Iranian food and alcohols drinks I sell meets the highest standards of quality, freshness and seasonality and combines both modern-creative and traditional styles of cooking. We all love to eat out every once in a while. Combining two different cultures of Iranian & Canadian. Giving new food flavors with planet of good food and drink for you.

Company description and Industry

The Industry

My industry is "Restaurant and Full Service". Most Canadians regard eating in a restaurant as a luxury. The average Canadian visits a restaurant 2 time per week. Canada's restaurant industry generates $75 billion in annual sales, which equals almost 4% of Canada's economic activity. The restaurant industry directly employs more than 1.2 million people, or 6.9% of the Canada's workforce - making it the country's fourth-largest employer. Canada's restaurants employ 512,200 young people under the age of 25 - that's one in five youth jobs. Restaurants provide more first jobs than any other industry. Twenty-two per cent of Canadians got their career start in a restaurant or foodservice business. With more than 91,300 locations, the restaurant industry contributes to urban and rural communities across Canada. Restaurateurs contribute nearly $300 million annually to charitable causes. Going out to a restaurant is the number one preferred activity for spending time with family and friends.

About My Services

"Iranian- Canadian" aims at the best quality and low price. We try our best to prepare a food that has the perfect taste and meets the needs of our customers. There are many different types of traditional Persian food (Iranian) and fortunately most of them are possible to be prepared to Montreal because all the ingredients exist here. Different types of Kebab, Ghormeh Sabzi, Ash Reshteh, Kashkbademjan, Gheimeh, Dizie, Chelogoosht, etc. are among our products. Seasonal salad and Shirazi salad are served with food. There are also many traditional Iranian drinks that can be served before or with food. Fresh ingredients are used and hygiene of the kitchen and health of workers is very important to us. Waiters and waitresses should be able to speak Persian and English and French. We decided to decorate our traditional restaurant so that employees who serve customers must all wear traditional costumes. Iranian desserts are served in "Iranian-Canadian" as Sholezard, Baklava, Halva, Zolbia and many other delicious desserts.

Industry Trends:

What is popular in Montreal?

Montréal has one of Canada's most cosmopolitan restaurant scenes with trendy new eateries popping up regularly, their menus heavily influenced by flavors from around the globe, and often with an added touch of French flair. Montréal's top dining destinations are plentiful, especially as young chef's move out of the Plateau to hip destinations in Mile End and the Ville ray to open new restaurants. Downtown, convenient to many hotels, finds most of its restaurants clustered between rues Guy and Peel and on the side streets that run between boulevard René-Lévesque and rue Sherbrook. Rue St-Denis and boulevard St-Laurent, between rues Sherbrook and Jean Talon, have long been, and continue to be, convenient and fashionable areas, with everything from sandwich shops to high-price gourmet shrines. Old Montréal, too, has a collection of well-regarded restaurants, most of them clustered on rue St-Paul, avenue McGill, and place Jacques-Cartier. You can usually order à la carte, but make sure to look for the table d'hôte, a two- to four-course package deal. It's often more economical, offers interesting specials, and may also take less time to prepare. For a splurge, consider a menu degustation, a five- to seven-course tasting menu that generally includes soup, salad, fish, sherbet (to cleanse the palate), a meat dish, dessert, and coffee or tea. A menu degustation for two, along with a good bottle of wine, will cost around C$200 and last four hours. Most restaurants will have an English menu or, at the very least, a bilingual menu but some might only be in French. If you don't understand what a dish is, don't be too shy to ask; a good server will be happy to explain. If you feel brave enough to order in French, remember that in Montréal an entree is an appetizer, and what Americans call an entrée is a plat principal, or main dish.

Competitive Analysis

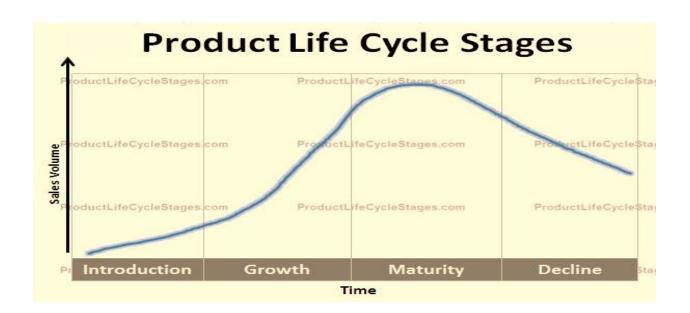

His restaurant industry is highly competitive with respect to price, value and promotions, service, location, and food quality. There are a substantial number of restaurant operations that compete with us for customer traffic, some of which have significantly greater resources to aggressively market to consumers, which could result in our concepts losing market share. Consumers are highly focused on value and if other restaurants are able to promote and deliver a higher degree of value, our guest traffic levels may suffer, impacting revenues. In addition, with improving product offerings at quick-service restaurants and grocery stores, coupled with the present state of the economy, consumers may choose to trade down to these alternatives, which could also negatively affect revenues.

Product Life Cycle: Pricing Strategy Price

When we talk about prices, we must take into account many factors. The most important of them is the cost of production. This cost can be divided into other factors such as: materials, some of them imported from the Iran if necessary. The cost of electricity or any other means of energy used to prepare the food the amortization of initial investment such as kitchen tools, dishes, restoration hardware, etc. Sales taxes of the rent for the restaurant staff salaries. These costs are estimated for the month first, but with a powerful management of them, profitability will increase because non-profit, we are unable to continue our business. But we know that for months he can have no benefit because of marketing strategies. Our customers can pay for their food using debit cards, cash or visa card or cash.

How is the customer going to be served?

While food quality is incredibly important, it is the experience diners have from the minute they walk in the door to the minute they exit that counts. Restaurants should remember to keep the customer's needs at the forefront of every dining experience. Here are a few tips for accomplishing this:

Speak Appropriately

- Greet your diners the minute they walk in the door.
- Use respectful titles sir, ma'am and miss work well.
- Don't interrupt.
- Listen intently and pay attention to what they want.
- Be thoroughly versed on your menu. Ask questions and repeat their orders to make sure you get it right.

How is the food going to be prepared?

Menu planning

Before the restaurant even begins operations, the Chef de Cuisine would plan the menu in consultation with the owner/general manager and the restaurant manager. In addition to other concerns such as marketability, inventory, equipment, portioning, plating design etc., one of the aspects that the Chef would have to consider is the prep and finishing time for each menu item. With the all the pre-prepared ingredients in place, or what's called the Mise en place, each course should not take more than 6 minutes to fire. Anything that takes longer than that is cut out of the menu.

Prep work

Before the service starts, the kitchen staff would do as much of the cutting, dicing, slicing, peeling, arranging, organizing, defrosting, tenderizing etc. as possible.

The mise en place is the reason why when you visit an industrial kitchen in full swing, you'll rarely see the chefs moving from their spot. If you see chefs running about, that usually means somebody screwed up.

Reservations and hosts/hostesses

Chefs love reservations. They love advance orders even more. That means they'll be able to predict the order volume without having to use their crystal ball, prepare the mise en place without much fuss, and devote their efforts to cooking the dishes well. So if you want a pleasant dining experience, pre-order your food. A good host/hostess would stagger the reservations and walk-ins to ensure the kitchen doesn't get swamped. Ever wonder why some restaurant hostesses say they're full even though you can clearly see empty tables around? Take a good look at the tables currently seated. If you see a lot of people waiting for their food, that's because the kitchen's deep in the shit. To prevent the shit from getting, well, shittier, the hostess would put a halt on the walk-ins until things get back under control.

Subject: Business proposal

Dear Mr. Robert Belle

You have submitted to me a proposal about a month ago. The aim of this letter is to request a small business loan of $50,000 to improve and upgrade my restaurant.

One of the reasons my restaurant is so successful is because it is the only restaurant in the area of a five mile radius that serves authentic Iranian-Canadian food. We purchase fresh produce daily and prepare several dishes that represent the cuisine of Iran and Canada.

To meet the growing demand for our specialty, I need to expand the kitchen, add some new stove tops and refrigerators as well as expand the dining area. The shop next door has agreed to sell me their premises for expansion at a fair market price.

There are several other different ethnic restaurants in the area that are also prospering, and I believe that the market for India cuisine is growing. My restaurant is crowded every night especially on the weekends. I have already invested most of my profits in the restaurant and require the loan to expand in order to meet demand.

Please see the attached business plan that outlines my financial projection for the next five years and clearly states my assets to date.

If you have any questions, I can be reached at 438 989-2103 or at mohammadfarughhajizadeh@hotmail.com. Thank you for your attention to my loan application.

Sincerely,

Mohammad Farugh Iranian-Canadian restaurant
