CRUISE.

The Mediterranean Sea is so large—965,300 square miles—that it can be broken down into regions, each with its own personality, cuisine, and scenery. The Eastern Mediterranean covers the Holy Land, the Greek Islands, and the countries of the Adriatic Sea. The Western Mediterranean is generally comprised of Spain, Portugal, France, Italy, and Monaco. You can experience it all by booking back-to-back cruises in both regions.

If there's one thing the Med is known for, it's history.

Today, many important edifices remain and attract visitors from all over the world. Explore a city frozen in time—79 A.D. to be precise—when Pompeii was buried under several feet of ash and rock as nearby Mount Vesuvius erupted. The magical walled city of Dubrovnik has marble paved streets, Renaissance carvings, and the Placa pedestrian promenade. And, of course, you must not miss the Parthenon in Greece or the Colosseum in Rome.
