About me

I love to travel. In addition to extensive travel across Canada and to major cities in the United States, I have lived in Panama, France and Niger. When I was growing up, my family lived in Niamey, Niger, where I attended the American School for two years. This gave me an exceptional opportunity to learn English and discover a very different culture. I also visited Burkina Faso and Togo while in Western Africa. In 2001, I spent a summer working at Disneyland Paris, where I provided guest support and operated rides. This allowed me to meet and work with people from all over the world. In 2003, I spent six months working in Panama, during which I learned to understand and speak Spanish with my co-workers and the people around me.

More recently, in 2006, I spent four weeks cycling around Iceland. It was a great experience and allowed me to indulge my other major interest: photography. For more information, please visit my blog here.

In 2008, I visited Japan for the first time, spending three wonderful weeks getting to know the culture and people. It was also another chance to experiment with photography. For more information, please visit my blog here.

Other Places Visited:

France, Belgium, Spain, Iceland, Italy, Germany, Mexico, Netherlands, Panama, Switzerland, Japan, United States (Los Angeles, New York, Orlando, Washington DC, Boston), Canada : (British Columbia, Alberta, Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Quebec).

I also enjoy practicing sports such as golf, mountain biking, hockey and basketball in my spare time.
