RIERA DON'T YOU CRY

by dreamingroll

This collection has been the scape I have been looking for too many years now. Somehow, I realized I needed to create something from the beginning, meaning I had to look back, to the past, to my roots, without being it the main character of the collection.

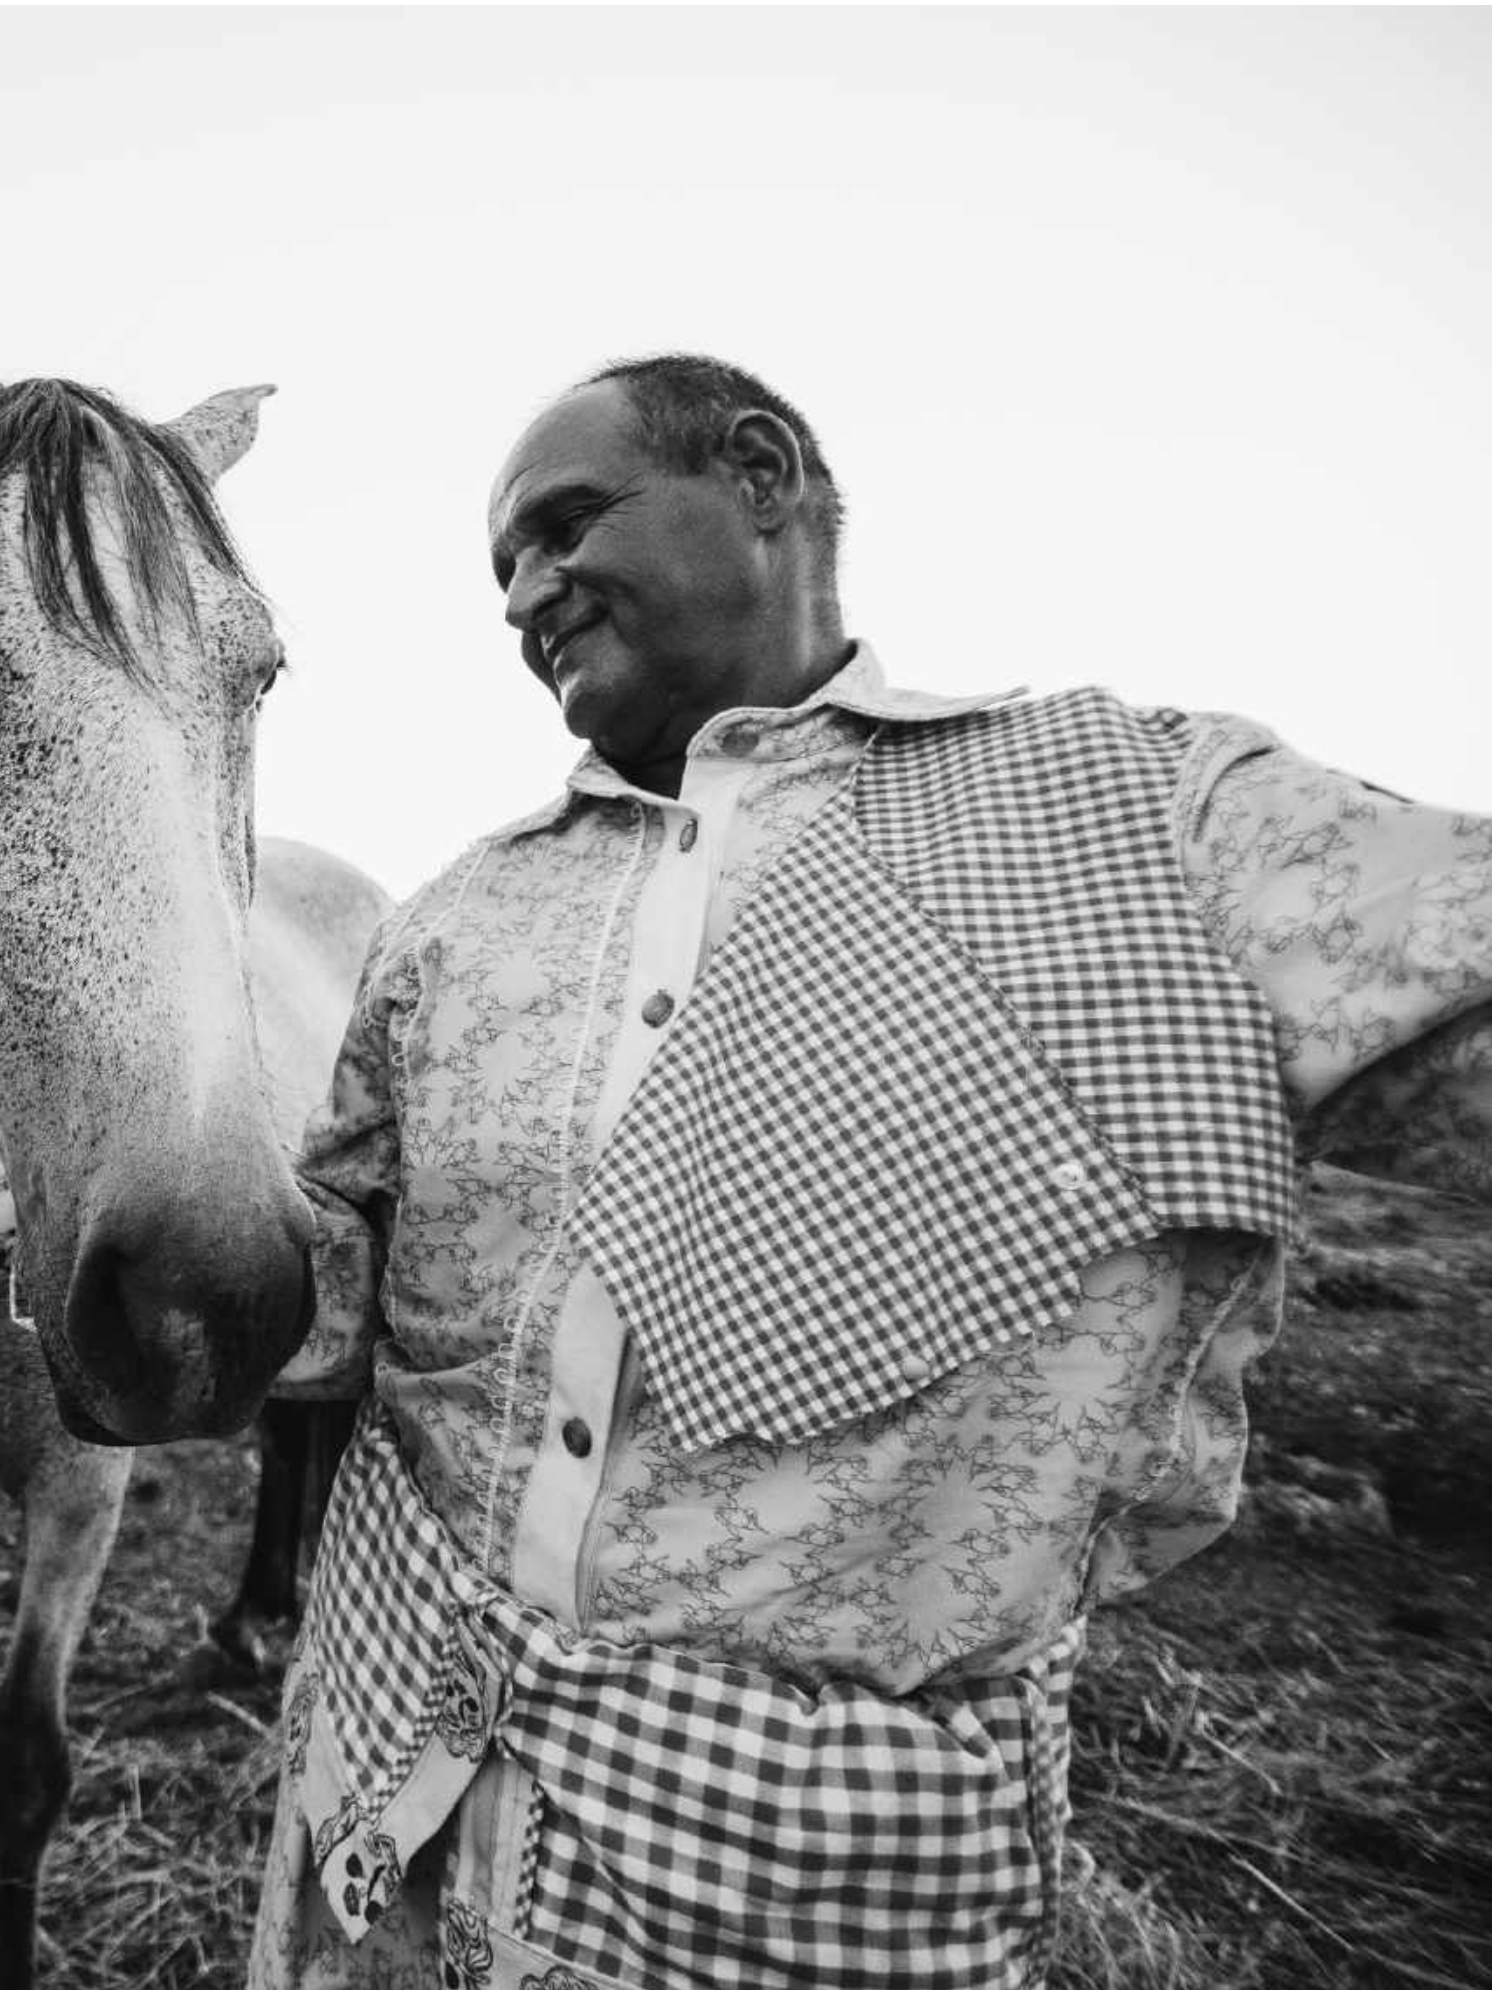

I have always been amazed with colours, prints, songs and books. So, here it is where everything begun, with a simple melody. I decided I wanted to split my soul into different colours and give them an adjective I could relate them to. That is why they are always overlapping a grey surface. Neutral. Silent. Like someone passing through a crowded street, wishing not to be seen.

I arrived fleeing from what I had once been, not wanting to lose it completely. Wherefor, for years I have been collecting song lyrics. I keep them on paper notes (or I group them into Spotify playlists, which nowadays can be considered the same) to keep them with me, in case I ever have to save myself from the invisible void that tries to fill me.
