SANGMINGYUE ZHOU
2020 SUMMER

ABOUT

Born and raised in China. I was introduced to the design world at a young age. My family is wonderful. My mom studied interior design, which gave me an early exposure to the industry of interior design, but now she is a construction cost consulting company owner. My Dad is a construction company owner in my city, which gave me the opportunity to realize for some of the local designer. I have a great longing to the world of design. I have longed to be an interior designer since I was a child. This thought pleases me to start developing my skills.

In order to better improve my ability and imagination, I used a semester to return to China last year. After being introduced by my dad, I met well-known designers in various cities and learned a lot of my professional knowledge from them.

As a proficient Interior Design student, the aspect of design that I am most passionate about is how spaces influence the people who experience them. I feel that this leads to spaces being welcoming and full of life, and draw people towards them. It is this personal side of design that energizes me and inspires me to continue to grow as a person and designer. With this passion, I want to stay curious and continue to learn more about design, people, history and the world.

This project was designed as the final project for the commercial design course. The course primarily focused on clothing shop design, we were provided with an existing commercial space in which our clothing shop would need to fit within.

The type design direction were entirely up to us.

The minimalistic and monochromatic style is characteristic of my design.

A simplistic colour palette was cultivated to guide the creation across design layout in promotional materials and digital platform, information graphics, to physical spaces.

This project was designed as the final project for the 3D digital rendering course. The course primarily focused on home design.

The use of natural materials, different textures, and patterns create a cozy yet sophisticated feel. Neutral colours are used throughout the apartment thought intimate, fluid spaces to unwind and curl up within. On outside, indulge whims, throw roaring parties and create joys in a home i am proud to show off, and after, keep all to myself.

This project was designed as the final project for the 3D digital rendering course. The course primarily focused on hotel design.

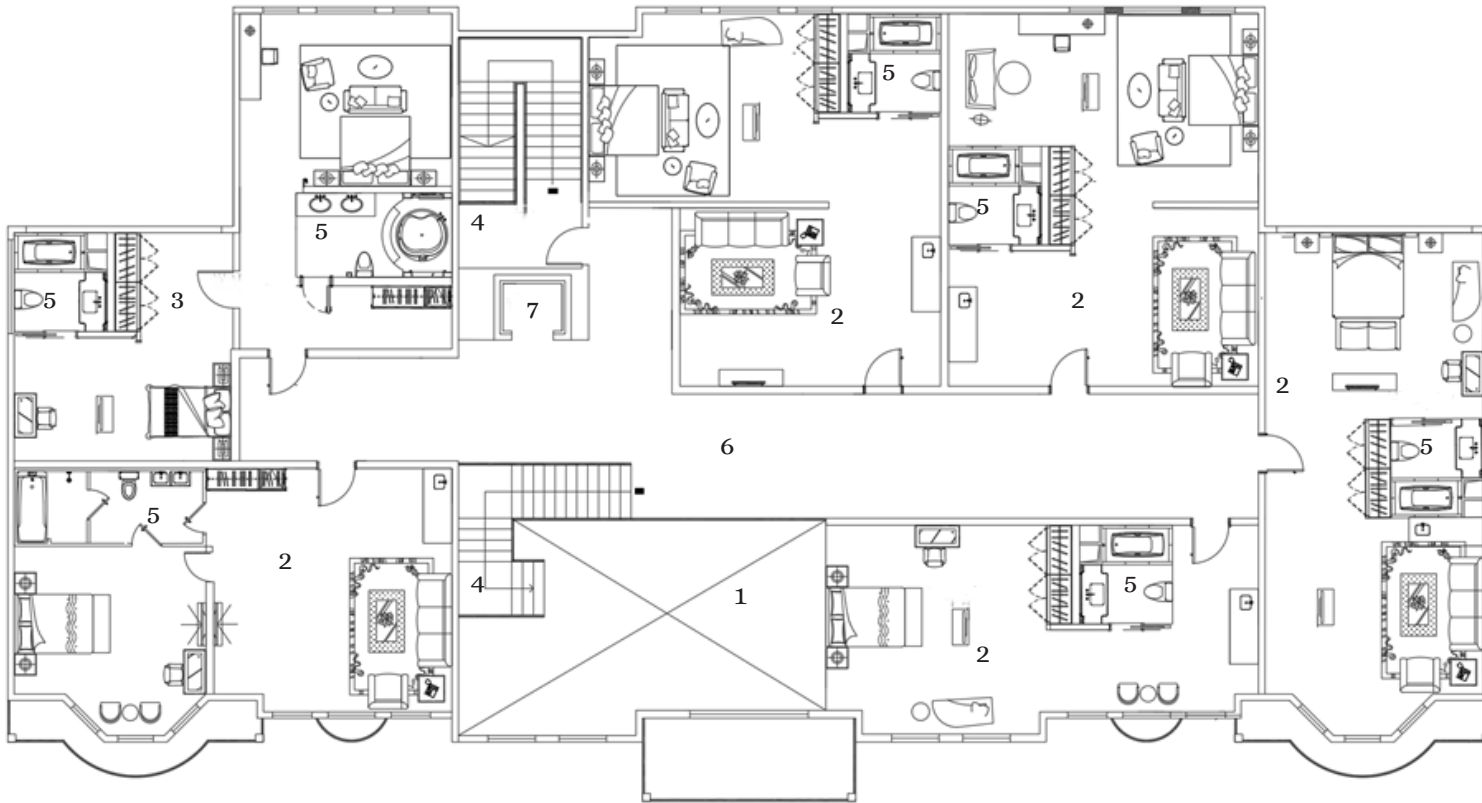

The whole design is based on the concept of Victorian architecture and combined with the modern style. It was a time of heavy, ornate furnishings, oversized everything, and a penchant for knickknacks. The resulting style is romantic, complex, warm, and dramatic, dripping with opulence and excess; basically, enough to make any minimalist shudder.
